ABOUT GK&TP

Globalization is generally seen as both a cause and a consequence of increasing spatial mobility. This mobility involves the transfer of knowledge and norms in socio-cultural life as well as science and technology. The aim of our research projects is to analyze such global exchange processes. We want to examine their conditions and consequences as well as the actors involved, in current and historical terms, from a conceptual as well as empirical perspective. The main focus is on the manifold tensions and paradoxes associated with cultural and regional differentiation on the one hand, and global connectedness on the other.
